

BUSINESS

LOOKING at the computer systems each school received are (at back) Cave Shepherd's Ricardo Crookendale; (front, from right) Cave Shepherd's Cecille Blackett, Foundation's IT tutor Roger Moore, IT co-ordinator of Queen's College, Cynthia Howard, Kay Wiseman of Duty-Free Caribbean, and Gerald Phillips, IT co-ordinator at Combermere.

Computers for three schools

THREE SECONDARY SCHOOLS each received a complete computer system from Cave Shepherd recently.

Combermere, Queen's College and Foundation are the winners in the company's annual Back-To-School Competition. This year's contest featured a new format, based on the number of purchases made by parents of students who wrote their school's name on the back of their receipts and dropped them into the boxes provided.

"Earlier this year Minister of Education Reginald Fahey asked for assistance with outfitting schools in Barbados with computers. We saw this as an opportunity to play our part and make a contribution," said Kay Wiseman, local advertising and media manager, Duty-Free Caribbean.

"As such, we decided to link it with our annual Back-To-School Competition in the form of the prize for the schools' section of the contest being a gift of computers."

Students take top prizes

THREE PRIMARY SCHOOL STUDENTS have won $500 vouchers with the Cave Shepherd Back-To-School Competition, which was open to all primary and secondary school students.

The individual winners of the competition were Anica Holder, six, of Boarded Hall, St Andrew, a student of the St Saviour's/St Simon's Primary; six-year-old Romario Turney of Foster Hall, St Joseph, a student of St Elizabeth Primary; and Danielle Belgrave, eight, of Glebe Land, St George, a student of St George Primary.

The vouchers were the reward of their parents shopping at Cave Shepherd and Pages Book Store between May 17 and CAVE SHEPHERD'S store manager Beverley Belgrave with (from right) Romario Turney, Danielle Belgrave and Anica Holder.

August 15, and dropping their purchase receipts into the Back-To-School Competition boxes from which their names were drawn.

Store manager Beverley Belgrave presented the children with their prizes, which are redeemable in school uniforms, including shoes, bags and textbooks at Cave Shepherd.